

The New York Times

36 HOURS

Lisbon

Where to stay

- The Casa Balthazar building, near the central Rossio Square, was acquired in the 19th century by the founder of Confeitaria Nacional — an iconic Lisbon pastry shop — and was converted into a hotel in 2010. The 20 rooms (some with panoramic city views) are outfitted with contemporary bedding and vintage furniture. The hotel also offers a spa, a pool and breakfast provided by, yes, Confeitaria Nacional nearby. Double rooms from 240 euros, or about $265.
- The chic new Hotel Hotel was designed by Pedrita, a studio known for its work on another fashionable Portuguese-owned hotel, the Visionaire Apartments. In addition to its 40 rooms, Hotel Hotel features a swimming pool, a yoga studio and a tattoo parlor. Doubles from €290.
- Cheese & Wine Lapa is a simple, bohemian option in the Lapa neighborhood. Common areas include rooms full of contemporary art and vintage furniture — all of it for sale. Twin rooms with shared bath from around €67. The Cheese & Wine hotel group has other options around town.